Bridge across canal at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., after it collapsed under weight of a freight train, drowning two trainmen and blocking canal, only outlet for heavily laden ore boats bound from Lake Superior to steel mills on lower lakes.

50 Freighters Blocked by Bridge Collapse There Yesterday

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Cheered by the news it may be possible to restore navigation in half of the lock approach channel by tomorrow morning, workmen struggled today with the steel ruins that block the busiest iron-ore ship channel in the world. Under floodlights last night a huge locomotive and its tender was dragged away from the damaged arm of the lift bridge which collapsed yesterday under the weight of a loaded freight train.

Today all efforts were directed toward lifting the damaged arm away from the other arm, which engineers believe is mechanically unharmed. A huge pontoon lift device, ordinarily used to raise lock gates for repairs, has been called into service for the hoisting operations.

If this arm can be lifted or dragged aside today, it is believed, the good arm can then be elevated and half the channel will be open to vessels by tomorrow.

Locomotive on Bottom
The locomotive and tender are resting on bottom now.

Meanwhile lock engineers opened the gates of the St. Mary's river compensating dam, permitting Lake Superior water to rush into the locks and raise the water level there by almost two feet.

This will make it possible for the shallow Poe lock, the only one on the American side still navigable to accommodate freighters with a draft load of 18 feet, 6 inches, instead of 16 feet, 6 inches, the previous maximum.

Anchored in the St. Mary's river, in Hay lake below the locks and in Whitefish bay above them, are some 50 huge freighters awaiting passage through the gateway that links Lake Superior with Lake Huron.

CIO Committee Calls Walkout at Gary Plant

Gary, Ind., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The CIO steel workers organizing committee called a walkout today at the Carnegie-Illinois sheet and tin mill here after a picket had been taken into custody in a disorder, and the plant employing 8,000 men halted operations.

The union called a meeting to consider a request upon other SWOC members for sympathy walkouts at other steel plants in the Calumet district.

The disorder occurred in a dues picketing campaign started by the union to compel all employees to show receipts for paid-up dues. Police placed no charge against the picket who they said roughed-up a young woman entering the mill.

Neither company nor union representatives would make any statement concerning plans for settlement of the walkout.

A 48-hour cessation of operations at the central works of the Carnegie-Illinois plant ended yesterday with a temporary truce. Cranemen had refused to work unless the management rescinded an order eliminating a half-dozen hot-weather relief cranemen.

Efforts to Solve Preachers' Death 16 Years Ago Fail

Minneapolis, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Efforts to solve the mysterious death sixteen years ago of the Rev. Knute Birkeland, failed again today when a second degree murder charge against Mrs. Mae Tyre, 52-year-old Sacramento, California housewife, was dismissed in District court.

Mrs. Tyre, wife of a retired railway man, was brought here three months ago, to face trial along with two men on charges they kidnaped the retired minister presumably to prevent his appearance at a lawsuit over an $8,000 promissory note which he sought to collect.

Lee County Red Cross Goal Set at $7,000 By Division Chairman

Lee County Chapter of the American Red Cross which ranked sixteenth last year among the 102 counties in the state in roll call work, has an enormous task for the coming campaign which begins in November.

This year the chapter's goal has been set at $7,000—a figure almost double that of last season.

Sounding the first note in the call for action, County Chairman Robert W. Sterling yesterday met with the division chairman to map the 1941 drive.

Mr. Sterling reminded his co-workers of the stress on Red Cross activity this year and the great need for success in the roll call. Co-operation of chairmen with workers will be necessary to double the goal this year, he said, and Lee county's standard of success must be maintained.

Attending yesterday's meeting and outlining tentative plans were Mr. Sterling, Mrs. H. F. Walder, county roll call chairman; J. Hofmann, roll call chairman for the city of Dixon; Mrs. R. H. Omen, chairman of the roll call advisory board; Albert Ruggles, John Davies, Mrs. Robert Preston, home service worker of the Red Cross; and Don Danielson, publicity chairman.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The federal government's "priorities" system has left its mark in Illinois selective service headquarters. Posted on filing cabinets containing the records of the state's draftees are white stickers inscribed in red letters:

Hints Atty. Gen. Biddle May Have Influenced Broadcast Cancellation

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Representative Simpson (R-Pa.) says he believes the house committee on interstate commerce should inquire whether Attorney General Biddle influenced the cancellation of a broadcast arranged for Attorney General George F. Barrett of Illinois before the National Association of Attorneys General in Indianapolis, Sept. 30.

In a statement released late yesterday, Simpson said the broadcast was cancelled after conferences between Biddle and Earl Warren of California, president of the association.

Simpson stated the radio time had been arranged about two weeks in advance and Barrett had

Arms for Merchant Ships Only Change FDR Will Request

Leaders Expect Message on Neutrality Law Before Week-End

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Legislative leaders reported today they had agreed that neutrality legislation to be introduced in the house tomorrow—following a message from President Roosevelt—would be confined to permitting American merchant ships to carry arms.

Those who attended a White House conference said it was agreed that such legislation could be sent through the house before the end of the next week.

It was said reliably, however, that the president, Secretary of State Hull and Harry L. Hopkins, the lease-lend chief, still were hopeful that congress eventually would also amend the existing law to lift the present prohibition against American ships traveling to belligerent ports or designated combat areas.

Hopkins, who had been reported taking the lead in an effort to have the law revised to permit the arming of ships and to allow them to travel anywhere, was said to have expressed disappointment at the decision reached at today's conference.

One of those who attended the

Tropical Storm's Toll Listed at 9

Atlanta, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A small tropical storm, born in the West Indies four days ago, headed with diminishing force toward the Atlantic ocean off the South Carolina coast today after leaving at least nine dead and extensive property damage along its meandering course.

Three deaths were reported in the Bahamas, five in Florida and one in Georgia in the wake of the storm that whipped across the southern tip of Florida early Monday, veered northward in the Gulf of Mexico and then cut a destructive path yesterday across a corner of northwest Florida and south Georgia.

Coast guard planes planned to resume a search for 20 fishermen, reported missing in the gulf coastal section between St. Marks and Carrabelle, Fla.

The storm, the weather bureau said, was still attended by strong winds and centered just west of Parris Island, S. C. at 1:30 a. m. (CST).

submitted his speech to the National Broadcasting Company, which had donated the time. The speech, attacking Communism and Fascism, appealed for restoration and revitalization of American constitutional procedure in Washington.

"Upon his arrival in Indianapolis, however," Simpson said, "Mr. Barrett was informed the convention program could not be arranged to accommodate the broadcasting period fixed by NBC. Mr. Warren urged that the broadcast be cancelled."

"This is not an isolated case of new deal censorship. There have been many other instances recently which suggested growing radio censorship by the administration."

$5,985,000,000 Lend- Lease Appropriation Submitted to House

Committee Gives Overall Picture of Program From Its Start

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The house appropriations committee approved a $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation today with the statement that production of munitions has not yet reached the point where defeat of axis powers was assured.

The committee reported to congress that almost all of the huge new fund could be obligated by next March 1 and that delivery of material could be completed not later than June 30, 1943.

And then, with publication of voluminous hearings on the appropriation, the members presented the first, over all picture of the lend-lease program which began with a $7,000,000,000 appropriation last spring.

They asserted that production necessarily was slow at first; that there had been no abuses in putting the dollars to work; that the new fund was imperatively necessary.

"Munitions superiority must be achieved to insure the defeat of the axis," the committee report said. "Production in the countries opposed to the axis has not reached the point at this time to achieve this, x x x x x"

"The battle of production must intensify and increase until the torrent of war supplies pouring from this country and the aided nations completely overwhelms the productive efforts of the axis."

First Line of Defense
"Our first line of defense lies in the lend-lease operations."

The big fund was included in an omnibus bill which carried a total of $6,159,416,229, representing a cut of $53,054,545 in budget bureau recommendations for items other than lend-lease. The largest of these reductions was a proposed item of $40,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority. The committee said consideration of this was deferred for two weeks.

The lend-lease fund was divided into ten categories, just as President Roosevelt recommended on Sept. 18. The largest was $1,875,000,000 for agricultural and industrial commodities. The second biggest amount was $1,190,000,000 for ordnance and stores and supplies. Aircraft requirements would take $685,000,000.

The committee's report and the hearings, while stripped of specific figures in many cases because of military necessity, disclosed:

1. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard plans to use $1,000,000,000 to feed one-fourth of Great Britain's population for the next six months.

2. While lend-lease officials are dissatisfied with the "relatively small trickle" of materials going to axis foes, they expect the flow to increase greatly soon upon completion of the time-consuming initial preparations.

3. For every dollar of defense articles exported, 70 cents worth of other services has been rendered.

4. Secretary of War Stimson believes that the world crisis is "no less acute and indeed, if anything, is sharper" than heretofore.

5. General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, believes that there should be no tampering or delay with the lend-lease program, asserting that "the British suffer today and risked their national existence by similar delays."

Program Unchanged
6. There are no plans for reduction of the army or for suspension of the draft program—either of which, officials said, would be "tragic."

7. Officials repeatedly asserted that it would be "dangerous" to deny to Russia the benefits of the lend-lease program, even though such aid is not now contemplated.

The committee report, noting that between 15 per cent and 20 per cent of the nation's factory capacity presently is devoted to production of war material, predicted that half of the industrial production would be devoted to that purpose by June 1943.

Major General James H. Burns, executive officer of the division of defense aid reports, gave the committee assurances previously made public, that Great Britain will not use lend-lease materials for export, but will use them "within the empire and only for needs essential to the war effort."

"City of Denver" Hits

Clinton, Ia., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Theresa O'Rourke, 40, of Fulton, Ill., miraculously escaped death Tuesday evening at East Clinton, Ill., where her automobile was struck by the Northwestern railroad's streamliner, "City of Denver."

Miss O'Rourke suffered a brain concussion and back and shoulder injuries besides severe shock. She will recover, her physician said. The fast train crushed her automobile like matchwood.

In the Pink

Scott Field, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Uncle Sam has wasted no time in getting his men in the pink of condition.

So hardy are the soldiers at this station that they will not be issued their winter uniforms until November, instead of October, the usual date for the change.

P. S. Officers did say the warm weather influenced their decision.

2nd P. S. (And gloomy note) Delay of the seasonal change means the men will continue to get up at 5:30 a. m. Reveille is delayed until 6 o'clock in winter.

Sidelights

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Facts and figures about the lend-lease program taken from testimony at hearings on the new $5,985,000,000 appropriation:

William S. Knudsen, OPM's Director General, declared he did not believe Germany could produce more than 2,000 planes monthly, despite reports that her output ranged as high as 5,000 monthly. He based his estimate on personal visits to Germany every other year since 1921.

Knudsen's munitions production goal for this country is to turn out "so much we will not know what to do with it."

This country's intercoastal shipping has been reduced by almost 50 per cent since the war began, said Chairman Land of the Maritime Commission, and "all ports have to suffer."

Secretary Stimson testified that "West Africa is becoming more and more, from what we hear, a danger spot, where supplies would be necessary; North Africa the same way."

The Army's Sixth armored division is to be created next March with 20 per cent of its tank equipment. It will get 50 per cent of its tanks the following month.

Knudsen testified that additional manufacturing facilities will have to be built for the production of a special type of steel needed for $180,000,000 worth of special bombs and for the production of 440,000 pounds of TNT daily to fill an order under the second lend-lease program.

Since the defense program started $2,000,000,000 worth of new plants has been authorized in this

Defense Council for Lee County is Named

In compliance with a federal request for the selection of a county defense council, Chairman D. H. Spencer of the Lee county board of supervisors, named the following supervisors who will be assigned to different capacities later, in a resolution which was adopted at the October meeting yesterday:

D. H. Spencer, chairman, Lucien D. Hemenway, Altio; John S. Archib, Brooklyn; Leon Hart, Palmyra; A. C. Higby, Dixon; William Kravon, Harmon; J. W. Cortright, South Dixon; Charles Buckingham, Amboy, and Elmer Miller, China.

Only routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting Tuesday. Communication from St. Vincent's orphanage at Freeport, seeking an increase of from $10 to $15 for the monthly care of Lee county dependent children in the institution, the second to be received by the board, was referred to the judiciary committee, for a report at the November meeting.

County aid in the amount of $843.75 was granted in a petition for the Dunn bridge on the East Grove-Hamilton township line.

Author-Editor, One- Time in Employ of Germany, Indicted

George Viereck Placed Under Arrest by FBI Agents This Morn

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—George Sylvester Viereck, 56-year-old journalist, was described by a government prosecutor as "one of the most serious menaces in this country" today at his arraignment on a charge of withholding information when he registered with the state department as an agent of a foreign power.

U. S. Commissioner Isaac Platt held Viereck in $20,000 bail pending his removal to Washington to plead to the indictment.

William Power Maloney, special assistant to the attorney general, in requesting that bail be fixed at $25,000, said that the German-born defendant for years had been the chief propagandist of the German government in this country.

"He is one of the most serious menaces in this country," Maloney told the court. "He has received from the German government as much as $40,000 in one year to carry on his propaganda work."

Maloney added that because of Viereck's connection with the German government, "there is a great possibility that he will never be here for trial, and that is the reason we are asking this high bail."

Is Naturalized Citizen
"This man is a German propagandist going back to the last war," he continued. "He has written books on German propaganda. As to his connections with the German government, he admitted that in his registration with the state department."

The defendant waived removal proceedings.

Viereck, a naturalized American who once acknowledged before a congressional committee that the German consul had paid him for publicity favorable to Germany, is subject to a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine if convicted.

Viereck, author and editor, listed in Who's Who as being born in Munich, Germany, emigrated to the United States in 1895 at the age of 11. His New York address is listed as 305 Riverside Drive.

A spokesman of the FBI said Viereck would be arraigned probably this afternoon in Southern district court.

Viereck, according to testimony in 1922, predicted the sinking of the Lusitania four days before that passenger-laden ship went

Editors Chicago's New Paper Picked

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Selection of Rex Smith, managing editor of Newsweek, as editor of a new morning newspaper to be established here by Marshall Field III was announced today by Publisher Silliman Evans.

George DeWitt, managing editor of the Washington Times-Herald, was named to the city editor position with the new paper. He and Smith will choose the title.

Evans said other top executive positions had been filled but the personnel would not be announced until the men have sufficient time to resign from their present jobs.

Smith at 41 is a veteran of some 25 years in newspaper work, including seven years abroad. For two years he was with the New York Herald Tribune's Paris edition and for five years in the Associated Press bureau in Madrid.

DeWitt is a former Chicago newspaperman, having worked for the since suspended Herald and Examiner.

Evans said the new paper would be of standard size. The subscription price has not been announced and the name will be chosen in a $10,000 prize contest. No date for start of publication was announced, but Evans said the name contest would end some time between Nov. 1 and Nov. 15.

Sensation
Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Conrad Schisler a gas-filling station attendant, donned his rubber boots yesterday and noticed that the left one fitted too snugly. Then he felt a squirming sensation.

Schisler said he took the boot off hurriedly and shook it. Out fell a foot-long grass snake.

Santa Will Tote Heaviest Pack of Toys But New Things Will Be Rare
Akron, O., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Santa Claus probably will tote his heaviest pack of toys this Christmas but there will be few style changes in 1942 playthings because of defense priorities.

Thomas Smith, new president of the U. S. Toy Manufacturers association, said today toy sales this Yuletide would be the largest in years—possibly reaching an all-time high—but that Santa could forget about new mould and die machinery for next year because there wouldn't be any.

Smith said that increasing use of plastics was being made in toy manufacturing but that even those materials were feeling the pinch of priorities.

Manufacturers, already looking ahead to next year, will try to keep their output at a maximum, Smith said, because "American-made toys have become institutional."

Until 1916, he said, most toys used by American children came from abroad. The World War halted most of those imports and U. S. manufacturers got together with educators, merchandisers and artists to design creative toys.

In the Bag

Reading, Pa., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Sidel, field secretary of the Berks County Humane Society, reports that a dog owner telephoned to say that several of his animals were "loaded with fleas."

"What shall I do with them?" he queried.

"Bring them in," Mrs. Sidel recommended.

Some time later the man appeared, and placed a brown paper bag on her desk.

"I scraped off as many as I could," he said. "They're all in the bag."

The War Today!

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Telegraph Special Service)

The great German drive against the fiercely resisting Russians is Hitler's supreme effort to administer the coup de grace to an enemy which he claims is on the verge of collapse, and thereby avoid the dire results of waging war across the blizzard-swept plains of Muscovy in the winter which is almost on him.

Success will remove a grave threat from his eastern front and will increase his source of supplies.

It might bring Japan into the war against the Soviet.

Failure means that in order to defend himself from the east through the winter he must expend strength which he should be flinging against England. It means that spring will find the reich ground between two great stones—Britain and Russia, with their allies—thereby giving an incalculable lift to the allied cause.

The whole Russo-German fighting front of 1,100 miles is swirling with many battles at close quarters, and an endless stream of nazi troops is being poured into the conflict. The Germans are making their major efforts, however, in two sectors—the center, opposite Moscow, and the extreme south, in the Ukraine along the Sea of Azov.

Both these operations are vital, but the nazis are directing greater weight at the center, for strategic reasons.

The immediate objective of the drive against Moscow is the destruction of the Red man-power under Marshal Timoshenko. Success would throw the route to the capital wide open and, what is even more important, would jeopardize the Russian armies in the northern and southern sectors by outflanking them.

The nazi assault in the center is following the familiar form of encirclement. That is, swift spearheads of mechanized forces are thrust through the enemy lines and start turning movements which are calculated to surround the Reds before they can draw back. Warplanes and tanks then begin the slaughter of the trapped men.

Berlin reports that breaches in the center of the bolshevist line already have resulted in encirclement of several armies and "led to a new and vast series of battles of annihilation."

Explaining the other day, the Germans mean complete elimination as a military force either by death or capture. That is, there are no men left who could be withdrawn and reorganized for further resistance.

Moscow admits that the invaders have thrust into the Red defenses, but reports that Timoshenko's soldiers are resisting strongly and even counter-attacking in some places. Their orders are not to give any ground at all, and the epic record which they have made ever since the war started has been either to do or to die.

Hitler's hope obviously is that if he can smash Timoshenko and capture Moscow, the morale of the soviet government and of the Russian people may collapse.

Hope, however, would seem to be the only thing to bolster this idea, for there has been no indication thus far that the Russians won't fight to the last ditch. How- ever, the nazi leader obviously would have improved his position

Nazis Build Doll Town to Protect Vital Refineries

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 8.—(AP)—American travelers arriving from Rumania reported today that the Germans had built a "doll house city of Ploesti" about 10 miles outside the real Ploesti, important oil refining center, to mislead Russian bombers trying to destroy the refineries.

The fake city, they said, was on a scale of one-third the area of the actual city and stood only about three feet high.

It is complete to the last detail, with every refinery and all the chief buildings represented, with an accurate street plan, and even electric lights which may be left burning during the night to attract the Russian planes.

Tracks Catch Moonbeams
There is a miniature railroad with tracks to catch the moonbeams.

Model oil storage tanks can be set afire whenever a bomb lands nearby, the Americans said, to convince attacking fliers that they had scored against an actual target.

From the air the whole thing is so deceptive that Ploesti itself has not been touched by any night raids and has been only slightly damaged by day, said the travelers, some of whom had lived in Ploesti for several years.

(The Russian navy paper, Red Fleet, confirmed the existence of this dummy town, but said the Russians never had been fooled.)

Appeal to Britain to Attack Germans From Rear at Once

Terrible Battles of Anni- hilation Rage on the Eastern Front

(By The Associated Press)

German armies storming toward Moscow in a great new offensive have breached soviet defense lines, trapped several Red armies and are now fighting a vast battle of annihilation only 125 miles from the Russian capital itself, Adolf Hitler's high command reported today.

Thus sorely beset, the Russians openly urged Britain to attack Germany from the rear with an invasion of the continent.

Red Fleet, soviet navy newspaper, estimated that the Germans had left only 25 or 30 weak divisions—perhaps 375,000 to 450,000 troops in France, with little artillery and few pla es.

"The British empire now has the possibility of taking the initiative into its hands, dealing destructive blows against the common foe of mankind, the Hitler fascists," said the soviet magazine, Bolshevik.

German front-line reports said nazi troops had broken through positions which the Russians had fortified for the winter east of Smolensk.

Flight Desperate
These reports said good weather favored the German offensive, which began at 6 a. m. Oct. 2.

In the south, too, the plight of the Russians appeared to be growing more desperate by the hour.

Nazi military dispatches said the entire south wing of the soviet army had been broken by a German drive which has already engulfed Ossiipenko and Mariupol, on the Sea of Azov, and is threatening the Don river port of Rostov, gateway to the rich Caucasian oil fields.

German battle flags were reported within 100 miles of Rostov after a 450-mile advance from the Prut river boundary between Rumania and Russia where the nazi onslaught started 15 weeks ago.

Crisis Admitted
The crisis in Russia's struggle on the central front was admitted by Red Star, soviet army newspaper, which said the Germans had driven salients into Red defense lines by hurling great masses of reserves into an all-out

Newlyweds Are Newcomers to Dixon

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smithson

Among newcomers to Dixon within the past few weeks are Frank Smithson, territorial manager of the Retail Credit company of Chicago, and his bride, who are residing at 203 Monroe avenue. Before her marriage at the Austin Presbyterian church in Chicago on Sept. 6, Mrs. Smithson was Miss Shirley Roubush.

The couple, who spent their honeymoon at The Dells in Wisconsin, returned to Dixon on Saturday evening, after a five-day visit in Chicago with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roubush. They are pictured above at the Chicago and Northwestern station, just before their departure for Chicago.

Mrs. Smithson was graduated from the Chicago Art Institute, where she majored in fine arts painting. She also studied dress designing and interior decorating.

VERSATILE CHICAGO ARTIST IS TO BE SPEAKER AT GUEST DAY MEETING OF CLUBWOMEN

Two groups of Dixon clubwomen—the Phidian Art and Dixon Woman's clubs—will be combining their hostess efforts on Saturday for a joint Guest Day program in the Loveland Community House auditorium. The art departments of both groups have arranged the program, which is bringing a noted Chicagoan, Prof. L. Moholy-Nagy, director of the School of Design, to their lecture platform.

According to Prof. Walter Croppius of Harvard university, Professor Moholy-Nagy "has had very wide experiences, and is endowed with that rare creative power which stimulates the students. He is not only a painter of international fame, (his exhibitions at London and Bale were very successful), but he has worked for years with industrial firms—in glass, metal, textiles, and wood, and is equally skilled in photography, films, typography, and commercial advertising. In all these branches, he did pioneer work in Germany and England."

There is hardly any field of artistic creation that Moholy-Nagy has not investigated; in many of them, his influence has proved authoritative. His exhibition, typographical work, publicity layouts, light display—and stage sets (Tales of Hoffman in 1929 and Madame Butterfly in 1931) amply substantiate this claim. His painting is the vital thread linking all his manifold activities.

Quoting from the March, 1937, issue of the English magazine, Art and Industry, "because of the work he did in devising special effects for the film 'Things to Come,' (H. G. Wells), he is at once associated with new worlds and with cities of tomorrow. But he will surprise many people as a man who has a healthy respect for the past. Always working for the things our sons will use, he never forgets, as he says that 'every man is a part of his father and of his traditions.'"

During the past several years, he has been engaged in making films in London. "Lobsters," a short, was chosen among the ten best films of the year. The Museum Art and the Architectural department of Harvard university asked him to make a film of the new architecture of the London zoo.

The book, "Street Markets of London," has become as widely known for the photographic illustrations by Moholy-Nagy as for its literary quality. He also made the photographs illustrating two books on Oxford and Eton, published in London. He is one of the best known experts in cameraless photography, has worked extensively on color photography, and had a one-man exhibition at the Royal Photographic society.

He has published, with Gropius, 14 books under the auspices of the Bauhaus, which are among the best sellers in artistic publications, and has lectured at Cambridge and Oxford. Some of his paintings are owned by important European collectors, and in his country by such collectors of modern art as Walter Chrysler, Jr., the Museum of Modern Art, and S. Guggenheim.

Herbert Read, well-known art editor of London, says: "As a painter, typographer, photographer, stage-designer and architect, he is one of the most creative intelligences of our time."

Mrs. Z. Glatter heads the Women's club art department, and Mrs. Oliver Rogers is art chairman of the Phidian Art club. Mrs. Glatter's committee includes Mrs. E. E. Wingert, Miss Edna Decker, Mrs. Louis Sinow, Mrs. Robert Dixon, and Mrs. H. A. Lazier. Mrs. R. M. Ferguson and Mrs. Glatter are Mrs. Rogers' co-workers.

Thiede Paintings to Be on View at Garner's Studio

So popular were several exhibitions of paintings held last year in the Frederick J. Garner studio, "Household," in Grand Detour, that another schedule of shows has been arranged for the present autumn season. The first display to be on view to the public for two weeks, beginning Thursday, Oct. 16, it will consist of a large collection of water color paintings by Henry A. Thiede of Evanston.

The pictures are interpretive renderings of the midwest landscape, particularly the regions of the Rock and Fox rivers. With few exceptions, the Grand Detour exhibit is to their first showing. For some time, Mr. Thiede has been prominent as an exhibiting artist, receiving special recognition for his etchings, drawings, and illustrations. Not until recent years, however, has he taken a place as an accomplished colorist. His aquarelles are winning universal acclaim.

The Evanston artist has an enviable record as a factor in the art life of the midwest, having been active as a worker, director, and—as a sideline—a teacher. He is not the product of any academic institution, and being one of the army of those who must earn their way, he has gathered his facilities through experience.

From necessity and by chance, his career led over a fairly humpy route, like that of many another American artist. His course ranged from sign-painting through newspaper illustration, editing, copy-writing, magazine art editing, and advertising illustrating to numerous et ceteras, interspersed with much free-lancing, and for a number of years, was art director of the Red Book Magazine.

Nevertheless, he managed to spend a great deal of time in studios in Paris and Munich, as well as those of this country, saw most of the major art galleries at home and abroad, and met many of the outstanding artists of this era.

Three years ago, he decided to do what he had always wanted to do—to paint.

There is no admission fee for the forthcoming exhibit, Mr. Garner announces.

A Thought for Today

The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.—Luke 18:27.

One on God's side is a majority.—Wendell Phillips.

Relax and Stay Sane

A lot of recreation experts and professional fun instigators are considering in convention the general prospects for play, and being pretty darned serious about it, too.

From the President down, one after another, they have repeated something that is pretty clear to anybody who thinks about it for a moment, namely, if all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy in ordinary times, all work and no play in times like these are likely to bring the man in the white coat knocking on the door. Dr. McCracken, president of Vassar College, put it with greater dignity when he told the National Recreation Congress that without the spirit of play the world will go mad.

That is pretty obviously true, and it requires no experts to tell the average man that a judicious mixture of work and play is the right way to live.

There has to be a certain amount of spontaneity about play, however, for it to have full value.

When 70,000 howling baseball fans watch the classic clash of Yanks and Dodgers, the first thing to note is that they are having a whale of a good time. The second thing to note is that nobody told them they had to go to the game; nobody was fining them if they didn't appear, or checking up on whether they went or not. Nobody was telling them when to cheer, or what was cheerable. They were all at the park because that was where they wanted to be; hence they were relaxed, and for a couple of hours the world was well forgotten. And that is as it should be.

That is the American way to have fun and to get the kind of relaxation that really does some good. In the dictator countries they recognize the need for relaxation, too, so there are camps and resorts and games. But they can't possibly be any fun with that insignificant looking fellow with the mustache gazing down from every wall; after 11 hours at the factory it can't be very helpful to have some brawny Storm Trooper come along, tap you on the shoulder, and say "Come on, now! It's time to have fun! Hell Hitler!"

What is fun, anyway? Why, a little time to do what you want to do without interference; to lose yourself in what you would be doing all the time if you could, whether it is yelling for a homer, trolling for bass, or remounting a stamp collection.

Give opportunity and the people will find their own fun.

Women and Responsibilities

A conference of national leaders will assemble soon at Stephens College at Columbia, Mo., to discuss "The American Woman and Her Responsibilities."

It seems a topic well worthy of discussion. Not everybody will be able to attend. But everybody can have a one-man forum, and ask himself: "In all my thoughts about my rights and opportunities, have I thought enough of my responsibilities?" A moment's reflection will show that no society, certainly no free society, can operate unless rights, opportunities and responsibilities are inseparable partners.

Hugh S. Johnson Writes From Capital During Mallon's Illness

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited)

Washington, Oct. 8—It won't be long now. Nearly all the straws in the wind show the rising pressure to send American troops overseas and into this war. The latest is Premier General Jan Smuts who says from South Africa that our entry into the war is inevitable and that if we are to have a hand in the peace we must have a hand in the war.

"You cannot merely stand on the side lines and cheer us on. You must come with us."

General Smuts is the great South African leader who captained brave fight against Britain for Boer freedom and then became a pillar of the empire, took a leading part in the World War I and the peace conference and was a leading architect of the league of nations.

Consider that with the debate in the House of Commons about the shortage of British manpower and its partition between war effort and industrial effort. Couple it with the forthright statements of the two leading British generals, Wavell and Auchinleck that Hitler can't be erased on the continent without American manpower.

There is nothing far-fetched about that assumption of purpose, because spokesmen for this administration repeat it with almost every passing day.

Of course, there is one alternative—internal explosions within the German area, even with no great defeat on the battle lines, completely changing the character of the German government and presenting an entirely new aspect of the problem. That is not at present likely, but in war anything may happen, almost any day.

Skip that possibility for a moment. Does anybody suppose that, as the hope of allied victory becomes more clearly dependent on an American expeditionary force, we wouldn't have one—and have it regardless of law, promises or the wishes of the American people? All you have to do to answer that question is to look at the record and see how we have been shoved, capoled and committed into underwriting all-out British victory regardless of all these supposed deterrents in a democracy to one war-like move after another.

We already have an A. E. F.—Perhaps as much as a completely equipped modern American division, serving in Iceland under a British commander-in-chief. We didn't even consent to that during the World War. We accepted unified tactical independence of command of his entire army.

This column is not today arguing about the necessity or wisdom of this inevitable trend. In an atmosphere still loaded with assurances that there will be no great overseas army adventures, it is merely trying to point out how worthless they are and how disappointing they are likely to prove to be.

Of course, as recent army maneuvers have shown, we are not prepared for any such thing, in training, equipment or leadership. That won't make much difference if the pressure really gets hot. It will be said that we are better prepared than were the Greeks, the Yugo-Slavs, the Danes or even the British up to Dunkirk. That is true, but remember what happened to those armies.

MURDER IN PARADISE

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: "It's murder!" whispers Maudie O'Connor, as she, her school teacher, daughter Mary, and their Scottish, Finn McCool, come upon the body of sophisticated Herbert Cord near their cottage at Paradise Lake, and Maudie goes off in the dark night to phone the police, probably from the resort inn operated by elderly Chris Gordon. Cord surprised the reporters by showing up this year with sweetie Margie Dixon, introducing her as his fiancée, when the people at Paradise had supposed him engaged to young Jeanie Morris, despite the objections of Jeanie's strict spinster aunt, Miss Millie, to their romance. Mary waits alone in the dark for her mother's return.

CHAPTER III

THE moon had sailed ghoulishly past seven trees before I saw a car coming down the road. From the time that had passed and the way my eyes ached from straining to see a welcome arrival, I suspected Maudie hadn't gone direct to the inn for help. I really don't know why I expected her to do things the simple and direct way. Being her daughter for too many years to mention should have made me expect her to do it the hard way.

The car was from the State Police post over in Greenville and the young man in a trim uniform was, according to his calm introduction, Officer John Antler. He was calm, too, and so was his companion, Dr. George Orway.

I didn't go over with them when they started in the direction to which I pointed. Instead I grappled with Finn McCool who was getting his nerve back again, and yanked him into the security and safety of the back seat of the car. Another machine came up and some more men got out and pretty soon I saw them taking flashlight pictures of the body and searching the ground.

Clews, I supposed, and again I realized that murder meant a lot. Questions, and suspicions, and the hunt by the law. But I was too tired now that I was safe in the car to really think much about anything but the cottage and a hot shower. I hoped to heavens Maudie was there and had sense enough to turn on the gas so I could get a soothing bath.

But she wasn't. I should have expected that, too. Eventually I did get home after I had told Officer Antler what little I could tell, and he and the doctor had taken me home and left me with some white powders to help me sleep and forget the whole ghastly mess. I had calmed down enough to go to bed before I heard McCool bark in that special way he has when he hears Maudie. I was almost too sleepy by then to be angry with her, but I did manage to ask a few questions.

"A fine time to go gallivanting," I said, while that fuzzy feeling decreased blissfully and my aching nerves relaxed.

"I was not gallivanting. I merely informed the proper authorities."

"It never took you so long to go to the inn on other occasions," I pointed out with less vehemence than I felt.

"I didn't go to the inn." She stood in my doorway putting her white locks up on curlers. "I went to the Morrises."

THAT jerked me out of my wooziness for a second. "Good heavens, why?"

"They have a phone, and I rowed over. I saw no reason to advertise this crime to the entire community, and at the inn people certainly would have overheard my conversation."

"That's just too bad. I suppose it never occurred to you that you left me there alone in that beauteous woods with a dead man and a criminal loose. It didn't occur to you I would have enjoyed a little Maudie, it seemed, had called the State Police from the old Morris residence, and then she and prim, straight-laced Miss Millie had discussed the crime. It seemed that Miss Morris was too busy recalling her own anger at Herbert Cord's attentions to think of why he had been company while the law took its own sweet time arriving."

"Nonsense," said Maudie, wiping cold cream off her face for the second time that night. "That nice Officer Antler said I did exactly right and nothing happened to you anyway."

"A lot you'd care," I said bitterly. "A fine mother you are. I suppose you're already seeing yourself as a lady sleuth."

But the next morning I started from where I had finished. Maudie, it seemed, had done her calling from the old Morris residence all right, and then, she admitted, she and Miss Millie, whom she had criticized not so many hours previously for her strictness with Jeanie, had discussed the crime.

"She knows the land around here and all the people," Maudie justified that night conversation thusly. "I merely tried to learn if she could throw any light on the crime."

"Well, could she?"

It seemed that Miss Morris was too busy recalling her own anger at Herbert Cord's attentions to her niece to think of why he had been killed or by whom. "Not that I blame her for feeling that way," Maudie hurried to add. "She feels he took advantage of the child's gullibility and unsophistication, and, of course, she feels this trick of his—this bringing his current fiancée back to Paradise Lake—is exactly what one would expect of such a character."

"If she goes around spouting those sentiments she may find herself added to the list of suspects," I told her. "And so will you if you don't keep still. I haven't seen you shedding any tears over the death of this man."

"You haven't either, so don't jump at conclusions. Anyway, I know she didn't do it."

"And I suppose by now you do know the guilty one," I said, completely out of patience.

"I made no such statement, but I can have my suspicions."

Suspicious can be dangerous when spoken aloud and I was upset more than I wanted her to know. After all, Maudie and I had found the body.

I DIDN'T want to be bothered with a lot of questions by police during what I had hoped to be a quiet, restful vacation. I didn't want to get in an argument with Maudie either. It was like hitting one's head against a stone wall, for one never achieved results. If I walked down to the inn, perhaps I'd hear what the local gentry was saying and if I went for the mail it wouldn't give Maudie a chance to go down there and talk.

Maudie was writing in her diary when I went to her room. "It might be wise not to put down all the people you think are guilty."

She looked up at me over the top of her glasses and chewed the tip of her pen handle. Her desk always was a mess of odds and ends so I don't know why my eyes were attracted to the coin lying next to her powder box. It was a lucky piece. At least that's the only way I can describe it. I reached over to examine it, and it fell into her manicure set.

"Well, really," I said, "I wasn't going to steal it. What is it, anyway? I never knew you to carry lucky pieces."

"I don't," she said more brusquely than usual. "It's just something I found. Maybe it will bring me luck."

"I hope you won't have to use it," I said. "And remember, if you mind your own business and don't talk out of turn you'll be able to toss it right over your left shoulder."

But going down to the inn I wondered at the look in her eyes as she watched me turn and leave the room.

Ed Barrow Picks Bonham, Russo as Heroes of Series

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Oct. 8—(AP)—Joe Gordon, the Yankees' great second-baseman, was having his right arm pumped practically off at the champions' victory celebration the night of the fifth and deciding World Series game.

His coat off and his tie loosened, Gordon could only grin happily as the invited guests congratulated him on his spectacular play against the Dodgers and his selection as the official series hero. President Ed Barrow, the septuagenarian head of the greatest empire the sports world has seen, smiled benignly from a table near the door.

Paul Krichell, chief scout of the Yankees, the man who passes final judgment on promising players dug up from a thousand diamonds over the country, was braced solidly out on the floor, sipping the rewards of victory and accepting a few congratulations, himself.

The writer chose a lull in the happy conversation to assume that Paul agreed with everybody else that Gordon had been the bright shining star of the playoffs.

"No," he said decisively, "I don't. Gordon only did what he expected him to do. We knew he was a great player. The real heroes of the series were two pitchers—Ernie Bonham and Marius Russo."

Shocked Silence

There was a shocked silence for a moment while Paul's words were digested thoroughly. He noticed it.

"What did Russo and Bonham do?" he asked, patiently not expecting an answer. "Here were a couple fellows we didn't know what they would do. Russo had a bad stomach and Ernie had a bad back. Neither had been in a World Series before. And all they did was pitch a couple four-hitters and win games we had to have."

Looking back on the five-game series, there was a lot in what Krichell said. Gordon with his 500 batting average, his seven walks, his slick fielding and his home-run that jarred the Dodgers at the outset of the classic, undoubtedly supplied the Yankees' sustained punch. But what if either Russo or Bonham, owners of inconspicuous records for the regular season, had failed to come through exactly when he did with one of the greatest performances of his career?

When Russo, the slim, nervous left-hander, went to the hill in the third game at Ebbets field, the series was deadlocked at one victory apiece and the Dodgers were loaded with confidence. The Flatbushers were in full cry; really thought they could win.

Freddie's Tough Luck

Well, most of the millions of words written about that crucial contest told of the tough luck that befell fat Freddie Fitzsimmons, the Dodger hurler. An injury forced him to leave after he had stopped the Yankees dead for seven innings. They said he probably would have won if Russo's drive had not struck him on the leg.

Maybe so, but it remains that Russo for seven frames had hamstringing the Dodgers even more effectively than Fitz had faltered the Yanks. The Dodgers finally nicked him for a run in the eighth, sure; but that only was after the Yankees had scored twice in their half and taken the pressure off Russo. The score that went into the book was Russo 2, Brooklyn 1. That was the one that broke the Dodgers' backs; taught them they couldn't slug it out with the Yankees.

As for Bonham, he was McCarthy's fifth choice as a starting pitcher. Red Ruffing was not ready to start again. Bonham, a strapping 210-pounder, was about the only man McCarthy had left, barring the faded Vernon Gomez. And so it was under those circumstances that he lumbered out to the mound and gave perhaps the outstanding pitching performance of the series throttled the Dodgers and blasted their last hope of getting back in the running. He made it conclusive.

Perhaps Krichell knew what he was talking about, at that.

MYERS & NOLAN BOWLERS TAKE LEAD IN CIRCUIT

Herb Bollman Sets New High Game With a Score of 252

Outside, the round face of the man in the moon beamed down on the Dixon Recreation while inside last night the round face of Lyle Myers beamed with joy on the scores of his bowling quintet which surged into the lead of the City league.

The Myers & Nolan outfit hit a two-game victory stride to overcome the Strub & Schultz combination and nudge the Post Office off the top perch.

It was a bad night in other ways for the mailmen as they saw three of their records of last week erased from the blackboards. The Meister Brau team set a new high game with 1109 and the Three Deuces captured the record for high series with 3021. Post Office kiegler Andy Tilton held on to his high series of 642 but Herb Bollman smothered his high game when Herbie counted 252 in his third game for the Blackhawk Food Stores.

Win Three Games

Only team to win the series were the Hawks who wouldn't answer the door even with the postmen ringing thrice. Leading the food store crew was Bollman with his 574 series and topping the mailmen was Tilton with 524.

Pacing Myers & Nolan to a two-game victory over Strub & Schultz was R. Hoyle with a 525 series. Hanson led the losers with 506.

Myers Royal Blue won two games from Meister Brau as McClanahan counted 531 for the winners and M. Potter rolled 520 for the losers.

Three Deuces took two games from Reynolds wire. Leading the two-spots was Hawker with a 519 series and Carlson's 531 was tops for the screeners.

High games last night included those of: Carlson 207; Hoberg 202; McClanahan 204; Gros 204; M. Potter 202; R. Hoyle 215; Bollman 252.

Cubs Are Chicago Edition of "Bums"

Chicago, Oct. 8—(AP)—Brooklyn has nothing on Chicago. This town has its own edition of the "Bums."

Instead of Dodgers, this outfit is known as the Cubs. The Chicago counterpart of the New York Yankees, who recently did great damage to the Brooklyn "Bums," is called the White Sox. The Sox have just devastated the Cubs in four straight City Series games and what's more, have been doing this sort of thing since 1930.

To carry the statistics just a little farther, the White Sox have taken the local post-season party 18 out of 24 times.

The division of runs in the final game was 7 for the White Sox and one for the Cubs—all unearned. The split of series cash wasn't much more impressive than the Cubs' performance, a total of only $35,956.21 being available in the players' pool. The four games drew 66,170 spectators.

The pitcher who closed the local feuding was Thornton Lee, winner of 22 American League games this year. He set the Cubs down in the finale with four hits.

It took seven days to arrive at a decision. Two games were postponed and a third was halted after three innings because of rain.

Sun Again, generally considered Calumet's best juvenile this season, injured a knee in a race at Chicago. He was fired and retired for the balance of the year, to await the 1942 campaign. REVIEW OF PLUM HOLLOW SEASON SHOWS SUCCESS

Local Golf Course Is More Popular Than Ever in 1941

Reminiscing over the past summer months and the happy times that were had at Plum Hollow, Frank Randall reports that the season was very successful from both a financial and membership standpoint.

More golf and less social activity was the program planned for the past summer and it met the approval of the entire membership.

Physically, Plum Hollow went through a complete "face-lifting" process; four new greens, seven new tees, new entrance, many trees planted, three thousand feet of water mains installed, new tees benches and many other improvements to help make Plum Hollow one of the finest golf courses in this neck of the woods.

The first party of the season was a mock wedding enjoyed by fifty members of the club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bush who were married May 18.

Plum Hollow vs. Country Club

Then on May 23 came the match between the Plum Hollow Country Club and the Dixon Country Club at the latter club. This was the first defeat of the year for the P. H. boys—they being taken to the tune of 69 to 57. This was encouraging to Stonehouse who had just taken over the pro duties at the Dixon Country Club, but the P. H. golfers felt that a different story would be told on the return match.

The breakfast match on May 28 was the real McCoy with all the golfers could eat at "Highby's." Ned Gianonni is still using the hair tonic... in vain.

The P. H. boys took another trimming at Twin City on June 15 by the score of 33 to 30. Too bad, too, with five Class A players being sent home without a match.

On June 23 the club again traveled to foreign territory and eked out a 29 to 28 victory over the Sunset Country Club of Mt. Morris.

Next came another big event and improvement—the installation of the driving range on June 25—with a swell program by the pros and a big crowd to watch them.

The first "stagette" was held on June 25 and did the gals have fun—50 of them, to be exact—and no men were allowed (well, only a few). Ethel Cline took the honor with a low gross of 51.

Thirty-five employees of the I. N. U. held their first stag on June 28. Fred Reis took the honors with a 75 and there were prizes for most of the other players.

July 4 was a real event for Marion Reese, who made the first and only hole in one in Dixon for the year 1941. Marion hooked a nice drive over the trees on No. 9 and what a shot—right to the cup and there were plenty of witnesses.

Plum Hollow entered the four-club round robin match at the Edgewood Country Club on June 30 in Polo with Mt. Morris, Oregon and Polo. Plum Hollow won the match with 15 players only 7 strokes over bogey. The Edgewood club gave the winning club a beautiful trophy which is on display at the club house.

The Flag Race on July 19 was enjoyed by 46 members and needed a flip of the coin to determine the winner. There were flags all over the course close to the club house. Don Bush was the lucky colt flipper as well as golfer.

Nineteen members of the Twin City club in Sterling were guests of the Plum Hollow club on July 27 and were beaten by the P. H. boys by a score of 34 1/2 to 19 1/2.

Edgewood Country Club from Polo was entertained at Plum Hollow on August 10 and Plum Hollow won by the score of 29 1/2 to 12 1/2. Bill Witzel set a new course record under competition with a 71.

The Reynolds Wire company held their first stag on August 17 and thirty-two employees played golf, checkers, etc., and enjoyed a real feast in the evening. The wire company furnished a group of swell prizes and all of those participating received some kind of prize.

August 24 was the day to be remembered. The Plum Hollow club entertained the Class A players from the Dixon Country Club and trimmed them by the score of 39 to 24. This made it 3 out of 4 for the Plum Hollow boys in the past two years. The outstanding score of this tournament was "Skeet" Feldkirchner's sizzling 67—a real course record outside competition.

The pairings of the A, B, and C classes were finished on August 15 and posted and 70 members kicked in their entry fees and

Wisconsin Clash at Northwestern Has Lost Punch

Chicago, Oct. 8—(AP)—A week ago, Saturday's clash between Wisconsin and Northwestern was awaited as an interesting match of two well-rated Big Ten teams.

That was before (1) Northwestern clubbed Kansas State, 51 to 3, and (2) Wisconsin lost to Marquette, 28 to 7.

Now the Badgers enter this week's tilt with a "team-that-was-to-have-been" complex. Yet they feel they still can have their say in conference competition, because the Marquette game was a non-league affair.

Sad as Wisconsin followers were at the bad turn of Badger fortunes, their hopes for a good year could be built up again by a victory over the Wildcats. After N. U., Wisconsin will meet unbeaten Iowa and twice-beaten Iowa and twice-beaten Indiana before heading into a tough November slate against Ohio State, Purdue and Minnesota.

Northwestern, on the other hand, must follow up its game with Wisconsin against ranking contenders—Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota before ending its year against Indiana and Illinois.

The Wisconsin-Northwestern rivalry is in its 51st year with the Badgers holding the series edge with 15 victories to nine for the Wildcats. There have been four ties. Northwestern, however, has won eight of the last nine games.

Notre Dame and Indiana both are worrying about pass defense. The Irish will meet Georgia Tech this week and Coach Frank Leahy says he is dissatisfied with his

Commissioners to Investigate Camp Grant Conditions

Chicago, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Two members of the Illinois state liquor control commission said they would visit Rockford today to investigate what the commission called unfavorable conditions in liquor establishments near Camp Grant.

William M. Devine, secretary of the commission, and Charles J. Fleck said that they have arranged a conference with commanding officers at Camp Grant and would seek to determine why Rockford is an exception to the commission's findings that conditions in liquor establishments near army and navy posts are very good.

Devine said staff agents had visited every post in the state and reported that local authorities were co-operative in every case which drew criticism from federal officials. He added however: "Rockford presents an unusual picture, according to confidential reports of our staff men. While there are no specific details to report, the commission has decided that it would be best for Commissioner Fleck and myself to make a personal inspection."

Baby Safe After Night in Marsh

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Dennis Ludlow, 2½-year-old boy missing since late yesterday, was found today, alive and well, in a marsh about a mile from his home.

The baby was found asleep on a grassy knoll in the marsh by Alfred Hinckley, one of 1,200 students who had been dismissed from school to aid in the search. Clad in a snug snow suit, cap and muffler, the child appeared in good health, despite his night in the marsh with the temperature in the thirties. He smiled at Hinckley and was not frightened, the youth said. Hinckley took the baby to the Ludlow home where the parents, tears streaming down their cheeks, hugged him and put him to bed.

The child disappeared from the front of his home at 5:30 p. m. yesterday with his bulldog "Dido." The dog returned home later in the evening but no trace was found of the child during the night despite a search by hundreds of townspeople.

Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri Dies in Rome Hospital

Vatican City, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri died today. He was 76 years old, having been born Oct. 15, 1864, in Rome.

Death came in a Rome hospital where the Cardinal recently underwent operation. Pope Pius XII, who named him camerlengo on Dec. 11, 1939, sent a special benediction to the Cardinal last night. The last sacrament was administered last night.

The late Pope Pius XI raised him to the purple in 1927. He was chief penitentiary of the church under Pius XI and pronounced absolution for him as he lay dying in his little bedchamber in the Vatican palace in the early morning of Feb. 10, 1939.

As camerlengo under the new pope, he would have acted as administrative head of the church, had Pius XII preceded him in the period between the death of the present pontiff and election of his successor.

Appeal to Britain

led to a new and vast series of battles of annihilation.

"In the Vyazma area alone, several soviet armies are encircled and their destruction is proceeding irrevocably."

Heralded by Hitler
 It was the first time the nazi high command had mentioned the vast new onslaught toward Moscow, heralded last Friday by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's announcement that "gigantic developments" were gathering momentum on the eastern front.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the Germans were "shifting from side to side" when blocked, striving to discover any soft spots in the Russian defense lines.

"Thus in one sector," Red Star reported, "a large German tank column tried several times to break through our defenses, but all attempts failed."

"Then they retreated and drove in a different direction, making a wedge in our position. Fighters of the Nth detachment engaged the tank column. The Germans lost more than 1,000 killed. Our units destroyed 65 tanks."

Red Star said the Germans were suffering "enormous losses" for every step gained in the twin drives in the Vyazma area, where the Russians stemmed an earlier nazi thrust in mid-summer, and by the Bryansk zone.

On the Don (Donaine) front, Marshal Semion Budenny's armies counter-attacking from the Donets river basin toward the Perekop isthmus gateway to the Crimea, were reported in danger of encirclement by the German drive to Mariupol.

Japan sent up a new trial balloon today for peace in the Russo-German war.

Fear Nazi Exhaustion
 Domei, the official Japanese news agency, urged the western axis powers to end the soviet campaign to conserve manpower and equipment for an all-out assault on Great Britain.

Voicing the fear that Germany would exhaust her strength in Russia, leaving Japan alone to face the hostility of Britain and perhaps the United States, Domei declared that the Russo-German war was started to prevent any threat to the German rear and that this purpose had now been attained.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said the German high command's statements had jointly declared there was no basis for reports of German troops massing in Bulgaria for an attack on Turkey.

Tokyo newspapers blamed Washington for what they described as the strengthening and spreading of the encirclement of Japan. Nichi Nichi declared editorially that "The Pacific situation is going from bad to worse."

The concerted outbreak of critical editorials, following a long period of reserved comment, came after disclosure of the shipment of oil and other supplies to Russia from the Netherlands East Indies, which Japan has to living with in her sphere of influence.

Arms for Merchant

meeting told reporters that if the legislation providing for arming ships went through the house by a substantial majority it was possible that the senate foreign relations committee would consider broadening the measure to eliminate the restriction on ship movements.

Barkley Won't Say
 Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the majority leader, told reporters he could not say in advance what the message would contain or whether it would seek both the arming of merchant ships and allowing them to touch belligerent ports immediately.

Barkley said he personally favored repealing both sections which would permit the arming of ships and their travel to designated combat zones and belligerent ports, but emphasized that was "merely my personal opinion."

Barkley said the president's message had not yet been written. He added the legislation would be taken up in the house first and that a bill would be ready for introduction in both houses after the message is read.

The senate leader explained that house leaders felt their branch would be better prepared than the senate from a parliamentary standpoint.

Asked whether he feared a filibuster might ensue when the measure reached the senate, Barkley said:

"Nothing has happened to base an opinion on. I certainly hope there will be none."

Besides Vice President Wallace, Secretary of State Hull, and his special assistant, Harry L. Hopkins, the president conferred with 12 Democratic and Republican members of the senate and house.

Rains Damage Crops; Farm Work is Halted

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Heavy rains during the last week brought farm work to a standstill and in some localities damaged corn, soybeans and shocked grains.

U. S. Meteorologist E. W. Holcomb reported today in his weekly weather and crop bulletin. Alfalfa, clover and pastures were benefited by the rains which blanketed almost the entire state, remedying drought conditions which persisted all summer in some sections. Rainfall for the week ending Oct. 7 ranged from five to nine inches, Holcomb reported.

There are 14 cities named Arcadia in the U. S.

These courses are open to owners, managers, and full or part-time employees of all local stores and other concerns engaged in the sale of commodities and services. Although the first meeting was held Friday evening, others interested in enrolling may enroll at the next meeting which will be held at the same place next Friday evening, 7:30 p. m.

The courses are being taught by C. N. Bolton, who has wide business experience in his field and is recognized as an authority. His success in other Illinois cities has proved that he is qualified to give retail people worthwhile information in these subjects.

Interested merchants and others are invited to investigate this opportunity to "learn while they earn" to take full advantage of increased retail activities as a result of defense activities. Consumer buying power has grown tremendously in the past few months.

Compton Women Enjoy Trip

Saturday, October 4, fifty-three members of the Compton Woman's club, along with fourteen guests and friends spent the day in Chicago, following the schedule that Mrs. Don Carnahan had so capably prepared. The two bus loads of ladies left at 5:20 a. m. The drivers of the buses were Elmer Miller of Franklin Grove and R. M. Sunday of Ashton.

As they neared the city it became more and more certain that rain was going to be the chief obstacle of the day, but the group had been splashing in rain for the past week, so what was that to dampen their spirits?

The first stop was the Sears Testing Laboratory. This laboratory is located in a section of the city which has become known as "Sears Town," because of an important part the Sears Roebuck Company has played in building this shopping center. This laboratory is maintained by the large mail order company for two purposes—to enable the consumers to get the best values and to enable the Sears company to compare their products with competitive products. Within this large laboratory are divisions of laboratories, namely the mechanical laboratory, the chemical laboratory, the textile laboratory and the household laboratory.

All phases of mechanics are tested in the mechanical laboratory. This large division is subdivided into parts, motors, electrical, etc. Saturday the group saw air conditioning units being tested, the length of wear on drawers being tested, the wearing qualities of linoleum was determined, washing machines were examined and tested for all possible defects and improvements, and even the number of a times a baseball can be hit before it is destroyed. The laboratory has its own machine for testing mattresses. It was interesting to the group to find that in testing the wearing qualities of handles on stoves that an artificial perspiration was made in order to have the true conditions of use in the home.

The chemical laboratory of this company was well equipped. The most accurate balances are used, some so accurate that light even effects the weights. Here insecticides, cosmetics, all farm products, cleaners, enamels, waxes, roofing materials are tested. Objects that are exposed to weather are put in the weatherometer and exposed to actual weather conditions. Mothproofness is tested with real larvae. Each department of this chemical laboratory has its own special expert to test materials.

The textile laboratory was of special interest to the groups. Here all materials are given all tests. Here the manufacturer's claims as to amount of fiber, color fastness, finishes on fabrics, water repellancy of fabrics, tensile strength of yarn abrasion of hostility, and all other claims are determined. A rather amusing but valuable test was being made on an ironing board pad. The iron was turned on hot and it was being tested to see how long it would take the iron to burn clear through the pad.

A household laboratory is kept where regular meals are prepared and the various qualities of different household equipment is determined. Two kitchens are completely furnished with all of Sears own equipment. The tests here are made by actual use as well as by physical and chemical tests.

Here in this huge laboratory is one of the most extensive research laboratories. Books pertaining to research are used constantly. There are several rooms to this large library. All periodicals that are of use to the laboratory workers are available in this library. The library employs five full-time librarians.

Consumers may write to the testing laboratories and obtain information as to the findings made in this laboratory.

From Sears Town the ladies went to the planetarium. An intensely informative lecture on "Why We Have Seasons," was delivered in a most clever manner by one of the planetarium staff.

After the lecture the group roamed through the various model kitchens of the People's Gas & Light Company. New ideas on color scheme, methods on decoration and possibly the fever of a new stove and a few built-in cabinets were carried away from this place.

After eating lunch at various places down town and shopping for two hours the ladies again boarded their buses and went to Jane Addams' Hull House. Here they heard a lecture on "History of Hull House" by one of the staff members and to admire the various old pewter, copper, brass, china and furniture that was brought from Europe by Miss Addams herself. At present the house is having difficulty finding instructors to carry on their general work because the national defense work has taken so many into government work. Hull House was erected by Mr. Hull as his country home. The original house is quite elaborate. The inspiration for Hull House, the oldest social settlement in the United States, is patterned after Toynbee Hall of London.

Because the weather was so disagreeable, the walk down Maxwell street was omitted. However, the buses crossed this street and the ladies were somewhat surprised at the conditions.

The last place visited in Chicago was the Museum of Science and Industry. Because time was limited the group divided and each visited the division that was most interesting to her. Some enjoyed a trip through the coal mine where the process of mining coal and bringing it out of the mine was demonstrated. The new Sears Roebuck "Evolution of the Home" drew a majority of the crowd as did the medical museum.

The crowd stopped in Aurora for their supper and then journeyed home, arriving in Compton about 9:00 p. m.

The members who went on the trip were: Ida Archer, Helen Beemer, Carrie Montavon, Anna

Miller, Cecil Johnson, Tilla Bauer, Agnes Johnson, Alice Ford, Cora Beemer, Amanda Florscheutz, Anna Florscheutz, Zella Swope, Maxine Gilmore, Mary K. Wolf, Mary Zimmerman, Lorraine Pasley, Florence Mireley, Gladys Bunting, Lila Eden, Anna Pettesy, Cecil Whitsell, Edith Whitsell, Edna Irwin, Laura Beemer, Mae Archer, Eunice Stein, Vera Bettner, Dorothy Carnahan, Irma Archer, Katherine Ulth, Coletta Shaw, Lillian Bauer, Hazel Effending, Dee Thompson, Nellie Bernardin, Elizabeth Buck, Faye Richardson, Alta Cook, Mary Carnahan, Marie Rasmussen, Emma Melbeck, Fannie Wafler, Mildred Weisensel, Margaret Pillar, Nellie Carnahan, Mae Bradshaw, Virginia Ogilvie, Ruth Ogilvie, Freda Zimmerman, Marcella Rhoades, Callie Miller, Emma King. The non-members were: Myrtle Burley, Emma Metcalfe, Myrtle Burchard, Ruth Kerchner, Mrs. Albert Bauer, Mrs. Alfred Kern, Ida Crippen, Virginia

Ulth, Lucille Cook, Ella Florscheutz, Mrs. William Halboth, Vivian Pettinger, Hazel Pettinger, Mrs. Iva Gardner, Luella Jarvis.
